

The Rector, Dr Tjama Tjivikua, received the cheque of N$25 000 from Retha van Wyk of PPS. Prof Farhad Aghdasi, Vice-Rector: Academic Affairs and Research, second from left, and staff of the Centre for Entrepreneurial Development were also present at the handing over.

PPS donates N$25 000 to CED

Thursday, 26 November 2009

The Professional Provident Society (PPS) Insurance Company has made a donation of N$25 000 to the Centre for Entrepreneurial Development (CED) which will be used for the upgrading of the Centre's reception area and training facilities.

The cheque was handed to Dr Tjama Tjivikua by a sales consultant of the company, Retha van Wyk, who said it was a "noble honour" for her company to be part of efforts to ensure that the leaders of tomorrow were well equipped for their future tasks.

"PPS Namibia is convinced that its contribution towards educational institutions such as the Polytechnic of Namibia will assist to breed more professionals who will be the future owners of PPS," van Wyk said.

PPS was established more than 65 years ago and comprises the world's largest group of graduate professionals belonging to a single organisation. It serves approximately 90% of Namibia's professional population.

Van Wyk added: "We are proud to be associated with institutions such as the Polytechnic and we know that this small gesture will enhance its turnover and set a trend for cooperation in future."